Description	People are different. Understanding them is difficult. It is said that you really do not understand a person, until you get into marriage or fight with that person, or share inheritance, or you give a personal loan and try to recover it from that person. However, we try to get by in our lives with limited understanding of people. The key to understanding people (including yourself) is to understand the four primary energies that flow through every person. The combination of these energies gives a person a specific attitude and aptitude towards life. These energies are known as personality colors. They drive the actions, thoughts, interests, desires, understanding, ambition, etc., of every individual. This workshop introduces you personality colors. By the end of the two-day workshop, You will be able to find your own personality color and gain the skills to detect the personality colors of others. The knowledge of personality colors helps you interpret many puzzling, persistent and nagging misunderstandings between you and people in your life, such as your parents, siblings, spouse, children, co-workers, employees, customers and so. People who attend this workshop usually leave exclaiming: Why did I not know about these four colors, before getting married and before raising children? It would have made a world of difference in my life and my relationships with them! The content of this workshop is based on 5000+ year old Varnasrama System of India, and has a simple yet powerful theoretical and empirical foundation. It is presented in a scientific and enjoyable manner. Participants are encouraged to get food and share with others during the workshop, to encourage building relationships and using other participants as sounding boards. This workshop is conducted several times in USA and India, since 2009. The blogs on the website (www.medhajananam.org/tm) contain the feedback from many of the previous participants. You can read through their feedback to know how colors helped, and even changed, their lives in many ways.
Schedule	Day 1: Participants will be introduced to the four personality colors (Green, Red, Yellow and Blue) in a systematic manner using ~120 slides. Using some 50+ simple aspects of life such as answering a phone call, investing money, picking a restaurant for dinner, etc., each participant will nail down his or her own personality color. Day 2: Participants will apply the knowledge of colors in various contexts of life such as family, workplace, society and spirituality. Participants will walk away with all they need to know to apply the knowledge of colors immediately in various spheres of their life.
